FOREWORD

The Toledo Federation of Art Societies wishes to express the sincere appreciation of its members for all the hard work, careful planning, and co-operation which have made this twenty-second annual exhibition of the work of Toledo artists a reality. Our thanks are due The Toledo Museum of Art; the judges, Frank N. Wilcox, Jean Paul Slusser, and Zoltan Sepeshy; the members of the various committees; the garden clubs which co-operated so splendidly; friends who have given time, advice and money to insure the success of the exhibit; and, of course, to the artists without whose contributions there could have been no show.

It is, moreover, gratifying to feel that year by year the exhibit is gaining significance both from the quality of the work shown, and because a larger number of artists are participating. It would be impossible to overestimate the importance of the pioneer work of those artists and leaders who labored through so many years to make a show like this one a possibility. The artists of Toledo will always be deeply indebted to Mr. I. W. Gotshall, whose determination and faith have been responsible for a large part of the progress we now see.

The citizens of Toledo may well be proud as they view the current work of Toledo artists. A number of the pictures are for sale. Toledo homes may be enriched and beautified by the creations of Toledo talent and skill. Buy Toledo art! The slogan adopted by Toledo artists has meaning and significance rooted in dual needs: the need of the artist for an appreciative market for his artistry, and the equally deep need of the public for the artist's original contribution to our community life.

With co-operation, what things cannot be accomplished?

Zoltan Sepeshy, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan; Jean Paul Slusser, Ann Arbor, Michigan; Frank N. Wilcox, Cleveland, Ohio.

Money which has been collected from associate members has helped in this particular and larger gifts are herewith acknowledged: Toledo Blue Print and Paper Company, first prize in water-color; E.
